

Job Advertisement

To strengthen human capital, Fraunhofer Chile Research, in the area of Aquaculture and Marine Systems of the Center Systems Biotechnology (CSB), is looking for a professional in the field of biological sciences (Biochemist, Biotechnologist, Biologist, Veterinarian, Engineer in Aquaculture, or in a similar field of study), who meets the following basic conditions.

- Vocational qualification gained before March 2017
- Verifiable knowledge and skills in the field of Molecular Biology, Microbiology, and/ o Cell Cultivation
- Experience in the field of project development of research and development projects (R&D) of applied products and services in the industry is required
- Experience in the field of project design and implementation in competition for public funding and/ or private funding is required
- Ability to work independently, to integrate in an interdisciplinary team and to work towards goals
- English communication skills at an intermediate to advanced level
- Immediately available

Desirable are these additional skills:

- Work experience in DNA/RNA sequencing
- Work experience in genomic analyses and/ or proteomic analyses
- Work experience with fermenters/ bioreactors for laboratory scale work
- English at an advanced level
- Knowledge and/ or work experience under GLP/GMP or similar standards

Our department offers a market salary according to the capacities of the applicant, career development opportunities according to annual performance evaluations, an indefinite contract after a three-month probationary period, permanent exchange with the productive sector and a competitive environment.

Applications should sent their application by e-mail to desiree.parra@fraunhoferl.cl by May 25, 2018. The application must include:

- Curriculum Vitae
- Cover letter, which must contain your own career prospects and your salary expectations
- 2 letters of recommendation